Preface.

The Registers hitherto printed by the Harleian Society have been—with the exception of those of Westminster Abbey and Canterbury—confined exclusively to parishes contained within the ancient boundary of the City of London. The printing of the Registers of St. James, Clerkenwell, of which the present volume is the first of a series of five, must therefore be regarded somewhat as a new departure. The Parish of Clerkenwell, being one of those immediately contiguous to the City proper, was at the date of the commencement of the Registers a suburban district differing from the City Parishes, which, although very much smaller in area, were fully covered with dwellings and fairly populated with inhabitants, while Clerkenwell was thinly occupied by both dwellings and people. A comparison between the burials in the City Parish of St. Peter's, Cornhill, and the suburban Clerkenwell, taking the same decades in either case, will give some idea of the enormous difference between the two.

In the ten years, 1561 to 1570, the average number of burials each year registered at St. Peter's, Cornhill, was 34, and in St. James, Clerkenwell, 57; in each case the period contains the year 1563, a year of great mortality in both parishes. In the ten years, 1765 to 1774, the burials at St. Peter's averaged 22 each year, a decrease when compared with 1561 to 1570, accounted for by the exceptional mortality of 1563. Making allowance for this mortality, the burials at St. Peter's appear to have remained nearly stationary for a period of over 200 years, while the burials at St. James for the same decade reached the enormous average of 457 in a year. Nothing could more forcibly illustrate the increase in the population which took place in Clerkenwell during the period covered by the Registers here printed, and we are only perplexed how the bodies represented by these figures were disposed of, considering the limited area of the burial-ground attached to the church.

The Register Books, from which this and the subsequent volumes are printed, consist of a series of ten volumes, most of which are in a good state of preservation.

The first book is of paper, containing Christenings and Burials from 1561 to 1653, and Marriages from 1587 to 1653; the Marriages for 1561 to 1587 are wanting in this book. At the end are the Marriages for 1668 to 1670, which were continued in it from a later book. At the first glance this paper book was thought to be one of the very rare first Registers from which the vellum transcripts were ordered to be made, but a more careful examination disclosed, bound up in the middle of the volume, four leaves of mixed Christenings, Burials, and Marriages, headed:

"A trewe note of suche Mariages Christeninges and burialls as were founde in sundery boockes and papers after the makinge of this regester boock begyn'inge at the yere of o^r^ Lorde god 1551 vntill the yere of o^r^ Lorde god 1578 as followeth."

These four leaves commence November 12, 1551, and continue, as stated in the heading, although with serious gaps, till 1578, there being no entry from June 20, 1552, till June 13, 1560, beside other lesser gaps.

Such of the entries on these four leaves not repeated in the vellum book next mentioned have been printed in their chronological order at the beginning of the respective sections. The discovery of these four leaves permits little doubt that a still more ancient book once existed from which this and the first vellum book must have been partially compiled.

The earliest vellum book contains the Christenings and Marriages 1560 to 1625, and Burials 1560 to 1616 only, and is that from which the transcript for printing was commenced, each entry being compared with the corresponding one in the first paper book, and every variation or omission between the two books has been printed in italics between brackets, the italics representing the reading in the paper book. In exceptional instances, where entries occur in the vellum copy which do not appear in the paper one, they are denoted by a footnote. At the termination of the first vellum book the first paper book had to be resumed for the purpose of the transcript.

The third book in rotation is of vellum, containing Christenings 1653 to 1673, Burials 1653 to 1670, and Marriages 1653 to 1668, the continuation of the Marriages to 1670 being in the first paper book previously described.

The fourth book is of paper, containing Christenings 1673 to 1710, Burials 1670 to 1710, and Marriages 1670 to 1691.

The fifth book is a small one of paper, containing Marriages only 1690 to 1712.

The sixth book is of paper, containing Christenings, Burials, and Marriages 1711 to 1725–6.

The seventh book is of paper, containing Christenings, Burials, and Marriages 1726 to 1741–2.

The eighth book is of paper, containing Christenings only 1742 to 1784.

The ninth book is of paper, containing Burials 1742 to 1770.

The tenth book is of paper, containing Marriages only 1742 to 1754.

The orthography of the names between 1625 and 1685 is very defective; hence in searching the Index for particular names care must be taken to note possible variations of spelling. With the exception of ff being converted into a capital F, the spelling of the originals has been maintained in each entry irrespective of preceding or subsequent variations of the same name. All superfluous words have been omitted, and "son" and "daughter" contracted to "s." and "d."

During the period Charles Ley held the curacy of the parish the entries commencing February 18, 1718–19, were made thus—omitting the sex of the child christened—"James of John and Mary Fathers Baptized." In cases where the Christian name was one common to both sexes, he usually added "son" or "daughter," as the case required. For the sake of uniformity the letters "s." and "d." have been added to all these entries, except where a few doubtful names occur to which the scribe omitted to denote the sex; these latter are denoted by a —.

In so voluminous a Register as this, it is obviously impossible to direct attention to any special names or other points of interest, but no volumes printed by the Society will afford a wider scope for the labours of the genealogist.

I cannot conclude this brief summary of the contents of this and the succeeding volumes without expressing, in the name of the Harleian Society, my sincere thanks to the Rev. John Henry Rose, M.A., Vicar of St. James, Clerkenwell, for the permission to print these interesting records of his parish, as well as for the facilities he has so kindly placed at the disposal of myself and the Society's Transcriber for carrying the Work through the press. Nor can I fail to express my admiration at the way in which Mr. Eedes, the Society's Transcriber, has completed his Herculean task in making so faithful a transcript of the originals. To the Society's Printers also I am indebted for many suggestions and exceptionally clean proofs.
